

Sierra Leone to Hull

As a cluster lead school for the British Council's Connecting Classroom's project, we had the privilege of helping to coordinate a visit of 16 teachers from our twinned city of Freetown. The UN's 17 Sustainable Development Goals have formed the backbone of our recent collaborations. Our whole school project explored how we can reduce inequalities through primary school education. Embedded within the Catholic ethos of our school is the aim to ensure that all pupils become active global citizens. Having Mr Kamara in our classrooms, working with our pupils, accompanying our International Pupil Council members to their meetings and sharing his culture with us helped to further mould our school's global outlook. It is brilliant to see 'Pupil to Pupil' projects being prioritised, especially when it includes pupils from our school working alongside those from Empowering Children School in Freetown. We are looking forward to further embedding the SDGs within our curriculum to allow us to experience more collaboration with our peers in Freetown, especially with one of our members of staff travelling to Freetown in May!
